PUT ME IN MY LITTLE LAVA BED. Mr Jeses Applogate, one of the Itdisn commissioners, gives the following graphic description of the "lava beds," which figure so extensively since the beginning of the Modoc troubles. "The stronghold of the Modoe Indians is a

'predegal. (an irregular roleanic surface) worthy of eredit, of the most extensive and elaborate description, it occupies, with but few in tervals, one-hundred square miles. If you can imagine a smooth, solid sheet of gran te ten miles square and five hun dred feet thick, covering resistless mines of guppowder powder scattered at irregular intervals simulaneously, rending the whole field into rectangular masses, from the size of a matchbox to that of a church, heaping these masses high in some places and leaving deep chaims in others. Following the explosion the whole thing is placed in one of Vulcan's crucibles and heated up to a point when the whole begins to fuse and run together, and then suffered to cool. The roughness of the upper surface remains as the explosive left it, while all below is honeycombed by the cracks and crevices caused by the cool ing of the melted rocks. An Indian can, from the top of one of these pyramids, shoot a man without exposing even a square inch of himself. He can with due haste, load and shoot a comnon muzzle loading rifle ten times before a man can se amble over the rocks and shams between the slain and the slayer. If at this terrible expense of life a force dislodges him from discove. he has only to drop into and follow some subterraneau passage, with which he is familliar, to gain another aml ish from whence it will cost ten more lives to dispege him, and so on."
